February

"Leaping Leap Year"

This year has leaped upon us in a very big way. Along with an extra day this month, we reached 13,000 on the Dow, the first time since April 2007! This move upward is widely seen as a very good measure of what the economy holds for the near future as the stock market is seen as a leading indicator. Although nice for equity investors, this move will not help TPIF yields as we are strictly a fixed income investor; it should, however, help pension fund returns at a time when local governments need the relief, although it's a longer-term issue. Employment numbers seem to be driving some of the recent gains with the increase in February payroll numbers capping the best six-month stretch of employment growth since June 2006, more than a year before the Great Recession began.

Nevertheless, we are not out of the woods yet. FED Chairman Bernanke stated, "The job market remains far from normal" when he recently testified in Washington. "The 8.3 percent unemployment rate and a subdued inflation outlook warrant a highly accommodative stance for monetary policy."

Bernanke also stated, "In the housing sector, affordability has increased dramatically as a result of the decline in house prices and historically low interest rates on conventional mortgages. Unfortunately, many potential buyers lack the down payment and credit history required to qualify for loans; others are reluctant to buy a house now because of concerns about their income, employment prospects, and the future path of home prices. On the supply side of the market, about 30 percent of recent home sales have consisted of foreclosed or distressed properties and home vacancy rates remain high, putting downward pressure on house prices."

In the Euro Zone, there seems to be a deal working on Greek debt, although it is still too soon to tell and there are many more concerns to work out. Moreover, the other PIIGS nations have serious financial issues like that of Greece to work out as well.

West Texas intermediate crude hit $109 per barrel late in the month and is showing no signs of easing which is affecting what we all pay at the gas pumps. Oil traders are taking their queue from geopolitical concerns from Iran, and to a lesser extent Syria, and most likely will drive prices higher until there is resolution. Our concern is that ever higher oil prices could stymie our slow and gradual economic recovery. We shall see what the "Ides of March" holds in store for us. We continue to invest in our core strategy of safety of principal, maintain adequate liquidity and achieve a reasonable rate of return.
