BACKGROUND:

Summary (continued).

The government bond-issuance process is accomplished by a team of professionals; the team typically includes government (issuer) staff and counsel, bond counsel, a banker (underwriter), underwriter counsel, and a financial advisor. Each team member is important for the successful sale of bonds that conform to strict SEC guidelines.

The costs associated with contracting for these professional services are typically included in the cost of bonds issued, in which case there is no general-fund cost. Also, costs tend to be quite modest, often less than one quarter of a percent of the bond's sold. The data and tools required to perform at the level of a Financial Advisor are not cost effective to develop and maintain for any single bond issuer, like Riverside County. By having an independent financial advisor, the client obtains an "economy of scale" without incurring the training, cost, and effort. A bond issuer hires an outside financial advisor (FA) to add value, improve transparency, and decrease the risks associated with what can be the county's single largest transaction in a year.

While County staff has some experience with financial issues, that experience is limited to one county's perspective. A professional financial advisor brings a broader and deeper set of experience. That experience comes from representing a variety of clients that face similar or comparable issues. The financial advisor provides additional assistance and oversight, thus assisting in compliance with SEC Rule 10(b)(5). Avoiding material omissions or misstatements in public offerings reduces county liability.

A professional advisor brings an objective perspective that is vital for a complex government. The advisor is focused on the county's long term needs as well as those that can instantly arise in a staff environment.

A central function of a financial advisor is to help the County obtain the best results it can in the market and document its efforts and results for future review.

The benefit received from adding a financial advisor to the county's team is so widely accepted that all California counties actively issuing debt do so. Counties with financial advisors include: Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, San Diego, Ventura, Imperial (when they issue debt), San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara (infrequent issuer), San Benito, Santa Cruz, Monterey (on an issue by issue basis), Fresno, Kern, Merced, Kings, Stanislaus, Mariposa, Sacramento, El Dorado, Amador, San Joaquin, Madera, Inyo, Tulare, Calaveras, San Francisco, Alameda, Contra Costa, Sonoma, Napa, Solano, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Placer, Yuba, Siskiyou, Trinity, Yolo, and Marin.

The County requires financial advisor services for short-term, long-term lease financings, general financial advisement on complex financial matters, provide assistance with annual cash flow financings (TRANS and Teeter), assistance with the Pension Advisory Review Committee, and other specialized financial services that may occur.

The financial advisors will assist the County in assembling financing teams, to include preparing and evaluating Requests for Proposal for bond counsel, bring bond issues to market, provide underwriter services, trustee, disclosure counsel, credit enhancement firm, verification agent, and other professionals as required, making recommendations based on the proposals, and negotiate fees on behalf of the County.

The financial advisor services will include advising on the size and timing of bond sales; structuring of sales on a competitive versus negotiated basis; bond maturity schedules; call premiums; provisions for the handling and investment of bond funds; use of credit enhancements; cash funded reserve versus surety; closing instructions; and other matters which may assist in obtaining the lowest practical interest cost and the widest competition for purchase of bonds. Where practical, the financial advisors will assist county staff in increasing their involvement in the bond issuance process, ultimately decreasing the role and cost of the financial advisors.

Contract History and Price Reasonableness

County Purchasing released a Request for Proposal (RFP) EOARC-034, soliciting proposals for Financial Advisory Services on behalf of the Executive Office. The RFP was sent to forty seven (47) potential bidders and was advertised on the Purchasing web site. A total of three (3) bid responses were submitted in response to the RFP. The proposals were reviewed by the evaluation team consisting of staff from EDA and the Executive Office. Each bid response was evaluated based on the criteria set forth in the RFP: overall response to the RFP requirements, bidders experience and ability, cost & fees, references, financials, clarification, exceptions, deviations and credentials, resumes, licenses, permits, and certifications.

Because the County seeks the option to have vendors specialize in various general tasks, for example Bond Counsel, Underwriter and Financing, the evaluation team is making the recommendation to split the award with C.M. de Crinis & Company, Inc., and Fieldman/Rolapp & Associates as the most responsive/responsible bidders. Overall, each vendor submitted a range of hourly rates of $266 to $297, and a range of fees that are based on debt amount. For instance, debt transaction amounts of $50,000,000, the proposed fees could range anywhere between $52,500 up to $90,000, depending on the bond's complexity.

Impact on Citizens and Businesses

Use of financial advisors will provide the citizens of the County greater confidence in sound debt issuance practices.
