"Black Swans and the GDP Two Step"

As discussed in our last quarterly commentary, "Major Flop in GDP," the gross domestic product statistics are a major indicator of the health of the economy. On September 26th, the Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA) released the third and final estimate of Q2 GDP that increased at an annual rate of 4.6%. This number reflected growing personal consumption, private inventory investment, exports, both residential and nonresidential fixed investment, as well as local government spending. Much of this strength was a rebound from the 2.1% contraction in activity during Q1. Moreover, this brings us closer to a more realistic rate of around 2% to 3%, providing there are no major unexpected shocks, or black swans (an event(s) that diverges beyond what is normally expected of a situation and that would be extremely difficult to predict) to consumer and or business confidence.

On a macro level, there are a number of black swans swimming around the economic pond as of late. Some of these events have simmered somewhat as in the Russian/Ukrainian crisis, but others have grown quickly out of control, such as the ISIS/ISIL terrorist movement, and their barbaric acts garnering worldwide attention and the subsequent conflict in Iraq and Syria. Furthermore, the Ebola virus has the potential to harm global economic growth if not contained and tamped down in West Africa.

Closer to home, the western drought, particularly in California, continues to affect the 8th largest economy in the world and largest food producer in the U.S. This is important to mention because agriculture is Riverside County's largest source of economic output and with dwindling water supplies, the challenge will be how to continue to manage through the dry spell as others are up and down the state. The impacts of fallow fields are hitting us in the pocketbook every time we stroll through the produce section at the grocery stores.

On a positive note, West Texas intermediate oil has dropped below $90 a barrel, a level we have not seen since early January 2014. Nothing has the potential to jump-start the economy like cheaper energy prices and with domestic production up and the USA besting the Saudis and Russians as the largest oil and natural gas producer in the world, this is good news indeed. Lower gasoline and diesel prices equals more disposable income.

At the sixth FOMC meeting of the year on September 17th, the message was much the same, although somewhat more restrained. The FED stated, "Economic activity is expanding at a moderate pace. On balance, labor market conditions improved somewhat further." Additionally, "inflation has been running below the Committee's longer run objective. Longer-term inflation expectations have remained stable. Beginning in October, the Committee will add to its holdings of agency mortgage-backed securities at a pace of $5 billion per month and will add to its holdings of long-term Treasury securities at a pace of $10 billion per month."

These statements are considered positive, and as the taper winds down, we're hopeful for an orderly transition in our financial markets as opposed to destructive selloffs; it's likely that the Fed won't be raising rates sometime until the middle of next year, however, this will all depend on if or when the black swans come to roost.
