On January 31, 1944, Cheryl was born in Bakersfield, California. Marrying Steven Moore in San Rafael, California, she relocated to Indio and then Palm Desert where they raised their family.

This remarkable woman spent 25 years working as an employment recruiter for both the Marriott's Rancho Las Palmas Resort and the JW Desert Springs Marriott Resort and Spa where she played an essential part of the Marriott Hotel tradition. During this time, Cheryl was responsible for helping thousands of people find employment and careers within the Marriott Corporation in the Coachella Valley. Forming many friendships throughout her employment with Marriott, she stayed in touch and was involved in her friends' lives long after she retired.

Volunteering was a large part of Cheryl's life. She was an active parent volunteer, serving in parent clubs and as room mother for many years. Cheryl could always be found in the concession stand at her sons' community baseball and soccer games. Once becoming a grandmother, she attended many of her grandchildren's games. She also volunteered at Desert Arc, and eventually became a part-time employee of the organization. Her favorite event to participate in was Special Olympics. Involvement in all these activities led to new friendships and the list continued to grow.

At both the community and district level, over a 10-year span, she participated in many of the organization's projects and activities. The cast members for the revue came from the community, including large groups of children. Having some musical talent, Cheryl took on the role of director of the children's choir.

Cheryl Moore had a productive and successful life, which she based on four components: family, job, community, and friends. She enjoyed life and made the best of what life had to give.
