Monthly Commentary

New Year... No Resolution

January saw little movement in Treasury yields, despite the flood of negative news regarding government policy and lack of economic statistics. Typically, such uncertainty would have an impact on yields. The Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) met on January 30 and voted to leave interest rates unchanged at 2.25%—2.50%. What did change is that the FOMC held a news conference at the conclusion of the meeting; they will continue with this practice going forward.

Going forward, you can easily watch the most recent FOMC press conference because it will be included in the digital copy of the Treasurer's Pooled Investment Fund monthly report [see page 1].

Government policy at home and abroad dominated January's news cycle. U.S. fiscal policy grabbed the most attention. On January 25, the administration announced a stop-gap measure to re-open the federal government through to February 15, ending a 35-day run that marked the longest U.S. government shutdown in history. In Europe, no agreement on Brexit has been reached and the U.K. is due to leave the European Union on March 29.

In the trade-policy front, officials from the U.S. and China agreed to a 90-day negotiation period at the G20 conference that will expire in March; if an agreement is not reached, then tariffs on $200bn worth of Chinese goods have been announced to increase from 10% to 25%. China has since offered to ramp up imports of U.S. goods in an effort to reduce the trade deficit, which still stands around $380bn.

Concern over the impact of policy uncertainty (e.g., U.S. Federal funding, U.S.-China Trade, and Brexit) has recently reached new heights. The International Monetary Fund (IMF) downgraded its global economic outlook for the second time in three months. The IMF cited a slowdown in emerging economies, Europe and China, in addition to U.S.-China trade tensions, as primary concerns for future global economic growth.

The release of some key economic indicators had been delayed due to the government shutdown, including updates for GDP, new home sales, factory orders, and durable goods orders. However, many indicators were released on time.

In the United States, the unemployment rate remains low and job growth remains strong. Growth in consumer spending remains firm, and inflation remains near the FED's target rate of 2%.

In our local economy, job growth is robust, trending above statewide and national levels. However, annual rates of growth in non-farm jobs added show that the job markets in California and the Inland Empire may be cooling off. In January 2018, nonfarm jobs grew at an annual pace of 2.5% in California and 3.8% in the Riverside-San Bernardino-Ontario metropolitan area. Those rates have trended downward to 1.7% and 2.0%, respectively, in December 2018.

FED Chair J. Powell recently stated that a global economic slowdown is his "principal worry," but reiterated that the U.S. economy remains "solid."

With the FED indicating that interest rates are closer to neutral than previously believed, January saw little movement in Treasury yields. The 2-year Treasury began the month at 2.50 and ended at 2.45, while the 5-year Treasury began the month at 2.49 and ended at 2.43. Stocks, on the other hand, moved up nicely due to the FED's more dovish stance. The Dow Jones Industrial Average moved up from 23,330 to 25,000, a gain of roughly 7%. With growth expectations for the U.S. economy being lessened to around 2.5% per annum and inflation remaining subdued, many investors are anticipating a period of steady short-term interest rates.
