BACKGROUND/APPOINTEE INFORMATION:

Jeff McClenahan earned a PhD from the University of Colorado in ecology and evolutionary biology with a specific focus on habitat fragmentation and land used change. His research involved extensive domestic and international fieldwork, experimental design and strategy implementation, data interpretation, and personnel management. He is an assistant professor at Mt. San Jacinto College and serves a dual appointment within the departments of anatomy & physiology and biological sciences. As a director, he will bring an ecology and fieldwork-based perspective to the RCD.

Pablo Bryant attended San Diego State University, where he earned a bachelor of biology. The majority of Mr. Bryant's professional career has been dedicated to the protection and stewardship of conservation land in Riverside County. As a member of the Temecula-Elsinore-Anza-Murrieta Resource Conservation District, his knowledge and expertise will continue to help address larger regional conservation issues that deal with wildlife movement and water quality. Mr. Bryant is very involved and willing to work hard to preserve the natural environment.
